Electroconvulsive therapy (ECT) has been used in New Zealand for more than 60 years. The first major review of ECT delivery was performed in England in the early 1980s by Pippard and Ellam (1981). The Royal College of Psychiatrists (RCP) and the American Psychiatric Association have also conducted reviews on ECT.

Electroconvulsive treatment in Great Britain.