Telecommunications Infrastructure and Economic Development Feb 8, 2010. This paper studies the relationships between economic growth, telecommunications development and productivity growth of the economy the ability of the telecommunications sector to provide an internationally