New South Wales' railways date from 10 December 1831 when the. In 1854, the first public line was built from Sydney to Parramatta Junction actually in Granville. Sydney and Newcastle were connected in 1889. In 1926 work began on electrifying Sydney's urban railways and connecting them. 26 Jan 1848.