Wry-blue Loves: Les Amours Jaunes And Other Poems

Tristan Corbière

Corbière was born in 1845 and died in 1875. His poetry is characterized by a satirical and self-mocking tone, often blending the personal and the political. His work was published in a bilingual edition in 2005, with English translations by Peter Dale. This edition includes poems which combine a hopeful love, a grounded sea-fever, an ironic compassion, and a savage sympathy with dogs.
